I have an imperative prompt, the result to which I can simply set. The problem is: When doing `var a = prompt(); var b = a +`

1; The most common outcome would be that b will be set to 1 and then assigned to a. If I set `a=prompt();` in my head (notice the order of functions), I will "believe" that a is not set until after the assignment of b. My question is: Is there a way to solve this problem without touching the DOM? A: The W3C specifications states: Prompting for input is a synchronous operation. Prompting for input can affect the contents of the document and the appearance of
